

MALTESE KNIGHTS

Alexander I & Napoleon being "Midwives" to "Miss" Finland,
And dates 7/7 1807 and 7/14 1776, Finland and USA!

Yes, that is true, as when they, the two most powerful men and Emperors at that time, met in Tilsit, East Prussia, at 7th of July 1807 to decide about the new borders of Europe, among them the fate of Sweden, from which they separated its eastern province, that we now know as Finland, Napoleon giving it to Alexander in exchange for the membership of the Knights of Maltese Cross, what a game, what a deal, but who won?

But let us begin anew. The head of the Stuart family of Scotland, who had been the Master of the World for Maltese Cross, had died in Florence at January 1807, and Alexander!, the Emperor of Russia inherited the title because he, or rather his blood was, from the Gottorp Royal family from Germany, and so he was allowed to exchange "gifts" with Napoleon, who had been mad because his blood was not "clean" enough for the membership. He wanted Sweden, that had been his enemy and rival, but said that he doesn't need it's eastern province, so you can have it, if I get the membership of Maltese Cross! (As we can see, everything is for sale in this world, if the price is right, but this was a good deal, for Alexander and Finland)

Now we have to point to the date of that agreement, it was 07,07,07, which is the Jack Pot, in the Black Jack, and Alexander suddenly had three sevens in his hand, so he won the Jack Pot, (Jihoo!) but Napoleon lost everything, later, as he had to give up his post of being the most powerful man in Europe, along with his army, but from that date on Alexander was the boss in Europe. Later he had the pleasure of leading his army to Paris, even two times, driving Napoleon into oblivion. Now the date 7/7 1807 is kind of lucky birthday to Finland, and we celebrated its 200 years three years ago, together with Ior Bock, since nobody else seemed to have noticed it at all.

Also that date, 7/7 is a very powerful day, in the old Roman calendar, it is the "Ancillarum Feriae" day, a day when women had a "day off", among themselves, even the women slaves had free day, to practice their shady witchcraft deeds, next day being the day of Goddess Vitula (Finnish word, meaning vagina) and at the oldest Root language calendar of Finland, it is the day (Klas) of the seed of Noakh! So the "Maid" Finland got her seed from Uncle Noakh, and Alexander I, the Emperor of Russia, and Napoleon, the Emperor of France, were the "midwives" to pull the new baby out, by "Caesarean section" (khi,khi) No other country in the whole world have ever had such a powerful "trio" to help it's coming to a nation, as Finland had earlier been just as an eastern province of Sweden, (famous only for it's witches) from 1050 till 1807. Still about that day, in Rome there was the "official" fig tree at the Fig Tree Temple, and it's priestesses had to collect branches from the Bock-fig tree to get its flowers pollen by the very small insects to produce figs, and Romans went in company to the temple of Venus to have a picnic there, eating vagina shaped cakes! Wham! (We here in Finland still eat them, from very old time, the vagina shaped Carelia pies, rice in the middle, they are very good tasting, popular too, and what if you put a mixture of butter and eggs (meaning sperm) on them too, mmmmm!) Alexander I had been born 1777. Those name days and date numbers were very important then, also in Finland. To study our Root-Finnish calendar is the same as studying the ancient history.

Sweden was without a king then, and Napoleon offered the Count and Marshal Bernadotte for them as a king, and they agreed. The present King of Sweden is still of the same family. Then at 1808 Alexander himself lead his troops to Finland, taking it over quite easily, promising “ten good and nine beautiful” to us, and he kept his word too, we were allowed to keep our language, religion, laws, money, just everything. Finland began to prosper under the tutelage of the Russian emperors, as Finland was never annexed to Russia itself, the emperors, up to Nikolai II, kept Finland as their personal Grand Duchy, they often spent a lot of their holidays here, as it was easy for them to sail the short distance from St.Petersburg, which was the capital of Russia then, to the rich archipelago of the Gulf of Finland in where they didn't have to fear the assassins all the time, as in Russia. (Name Finland since AD 862, when Russia was formed as a state, around Novgorod, by Finnish born king Rurik, who established the Ivan dynasty in Russia, that ruled till 1580:s, before that Vinland, still on some Dutch maps as late as 1675 and 1700, “vin” meaning the sperm) And by the last Catholic Bishop of Sweden, Olaus Magnus, the Uncle Noah had lived in Vinland, as written in his book “Carta Gothica”, published 1539 in Venice.

Also Napoleon had insisted that Finland should be made as a model country for Europe, governed by Senate, and senators, model taken from the United States, and of the old Roman empire, for which Alexander willingly agreed, he treated Finland with silk gloves. He even sneaked into Finland, at 1825, after his fixed “death” at Asov Sea, and lived here until 1854 with the Bock family, when he was brought, again Incognito to the monastery of Valamo, at lake Ladoga, where he died at 1856, his grave being there, the one without a name.

* * *

But there is still the “most juicy” part of the pact Napoleon and Alexander made at Tilsit at 7th July 1807. Such a pact had to be sealed the most powerful way, so when being alone in the tent, Alexander and Napoleon whisked some sperm out of their phalluses, offering it to each other, to eat, what was the old custom among the Maltan knights, (and in Finland, for newborn babies, at name giving ceremony) so the beginning of “Miss” Finland smelled very much of such sweet Nectar and Ambrosia! Wham!

Napoleon had earlier been mad for the Maltan knights, destroying their premises in Malta, so they had no place for their meetings, but as Alexander was now “owner” of Finland (up till 1825, after that Nikolai I, Alexander II, Alexander III, Nicolai II) he realized that he can use those islands in the Golf of Finland, and he chose the biggest of them, naming it Hogland, having a plush casino to be built there, and all the high Maltese and Free Mason members, the kings and emperors of Europe were coming there with their yachts or navy vessels for their summer meetings. No pressmen or Paparatzies were allowed to sneak there. Only their wives didn't like it, I suppose, so they had plush villas to be built in Helsinki and Hanko to have fun with gigolos in casinos, bathhouses and restaurants that were also being built there (here), some of them still standing.

That kind of role the Knights of Malta have had in “creating” Finland, which got its independence from Russia at 1917, at the same time when Lenin had had the Russian revolution started, which was also the making of the Gottorp family, as it was the General Erich Ludendorff who fixed it, having brought Lenin to St. Petersburg from Switzerland, with own train and huge bags of money, Finland being in that plan too, as a side show. Then that second, and now “official” birthday of Finland happened at the Nikolaus day, 6th December, the day of the Santa, Lenin having to put his name under the Declaration of Independence of Finland, but that’s another story. Two birthdays, first with the Sperm of Noah, the second, by Santa Klaus, but that “Klaus” being again the same as “Klas”, so ?

This is especially for my Americans friends. I have had the honor of having resided in Canada and USA, at -50:s and -60:s, (being milkman in crazy Hollywood) and now learning that the 13th the decisive man to put his name on the founding paper of the USA, the John Morton, being at the head of Pennsylvania delegation, had Finnish ancestors. (His grandfather Marttinen had come from Finland) Votes having had been even 6-6 before him, (he was late) so either to stay with British, or being independent, he decided to give his vote for the independence of The United States, 7-6 at Philadelphia, on July 14th 1776. I am proud of him! So my greetings from the land of Santa Claus (and witchcraft) to the people of the United States of America, we are tied together by some very thin but extraordinary way!

But two Finnish related men, the King Rurik, from Sigtuna, and John Morton, both having had a decisive role in helping to form both Russia, 862 and USA, 1776 is almost too much, from the small Finnish nation, today 5.5 million strong, and over three million saunas. (And (?) witches) Vinland (sperm land), by the way, had no borders, it stretched from Atlantic till Pacific Ocean, there were very few people living then.

Have you happen to see the Christmas Greeting from the State Television (YLE) of Finland which is being shown all over the Globe, every X:mas, free, in which Santa is leaving his cottage in snowy Lapland with one Reindeer pulling his sleigh, with only two sacks of gifts, how come, for all children of the Globe? The answer is, they represent his balls, full of seeds, for mothers, to have more kids, all over the Globe, Jippii !!
